

CONTRIBUTORS

Patrycja Antoszek is an Assistant Professor in the Department of American Literature and Culture at the John Paul II Catholic University of Lublin, Poland. She teaches courses on American literature and literary theory. She published several articles on contemporary American novels and short stories and is the author of The Carnavalesque Muse: The New Fiction of Robert Coover. Her professional interests include postmodernist literature, literary theory, contemporary gothic and psychoanalytic criticism. She is currently working on a book on the fiction of Shirley Jackson.
[ORCID: 0000-0002-9784-6269; patbar@kul.lublin.pl]

Elena Avanzas Álvarez is an associate lecturer at the University of Oviedo (Spain). Her research focuses on crime, forensics, and medicine in 21st-century literature from an interdisciplinary point of view that aims to bring together comparative literature, philosophy, medicine, and cultural studies. Her work has appeared in various academic journals as well as in magazines such as the Los Angeles Review of Books and Mystery Tribune. She is also the founder of Bodies in the Library, a site dedicated to crime fiction and women's writing.
[ORCID: 0000-0002-0471-3310; eleavanzas@gmail.com]

Michał Choiński is Assistant Professor in the Institute of English Studies at the Jagiellonian University. His research focuses on the American colonial preaching tradition and on the literature and culture of the American South. He pursues both these topics as part of two OPUS grants funded by the Polish National Science Centre. His monograph Rhetoric of the Revival: The Language of the Great Awakening Preachers (2016) was published by the Jonathan Edwards Centre at Yale University. His second monograph Southern Hyperboles will be coming out in 2020.
[ORCID: 0000-0001-6503-3602; michal.choinski@uj.edu.pl]

Constante González Groba is Professor of American literature at the University of Santiago (Spain). He has written essays on Carson McCullers, Lee Smith, Lillian Smith, Elizabeth Madox Roberts, Bobbie Ann Mason, Ellen Glasgow, Colson Whitehead, and others. His latest book is On Their Own Premises: Southern Women Writers and the Homeplace (Universitat de València, 2008). He edited Hijas del Viejo Sur: La mujer en la literatura del Sur de los Estados Unidos (Universitat de València, 2012) and Unsteadily Marching On: The US South in Motion (Universitat de València, 2013). He has led competitive research projects about women in southern fiction, southern fiction and civil rights, and southern autobiography. At present, he is doing research into intersections of race and the body.
[ORCID: 0000-0002-0556-8362; constante.gonzalez@usc.es]

Antoni Górný (MA) graduated from the American Studies Center at the University of Warsaw with a thesis on the autobiographies of five jazz musicians – Louis Armstrong, Sidney Bechet, Mezz Mezzrow, Artie Shaw, and Charles Mingus. He has translated works of literature, philosophy, cultural studies, philosophy, and history, into both Polish and English. A recipient of the Fulbright Junior Advanced Research Award, he currently teaches at the American Studies Center while working on a doctoral dissertation on the blaxploitation films of the 1970's.

[ORCID: 0000-0001-9816-9944; antoni.gorny@yahoo.com]

Clara Juncker is Associate Professor, former Director of the Center for American Studies, President of the Danish Association for American Studies, and President of the Nordic Association for American Studies. She has previously been employed at the University of Aarhus; Tulane University, New Orleans; University of California at Los Angeles; The Copenhagen Business School, Skt. Joseph University, Macau, and as an ACLS Visiting Scholar at the University of California, Santa Barbara. She has served on the Board of the European Association for American Studies and is currently the Danish representative in the European American Studies Network. She has published widely on both sides of the Atlantic within the fields of 19th- and 20th-century American Literature and Culture, African American Studies, Transnational Studies, Southern Studies, Academic Writing, Gender Studies, War and Culture, American Art, in journals including The Mississippi Quarterly, The Southern Quarterly, The Hemingway Review, Literature/Film Quarterly, and College English. Her books include The Transatlantic Sixties: Europe and the United States in the Counterculture Decade, Trading Cultures: Nationalism and Globalization in American Studies, Through Random Doors We Wandered: Women Writing the South, Transnational America: Contours of Modern U.S. Culture, Circling Marilyn: Text, Body Performance, and Black Roses: African American Women Writers. She has lectured at universities throughout Europe and the United States and at universities in Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Macau, Lebanon, and The People's Republic of China.

[ORCID: 0000-0001-6927-2870; juncker@sdu.dk]

Ewa Kłeczaj-Siara is Assistant Professor at the Faculty of English, Casimir Pulaski University of Technology and Humanities in Radom. She obtained her PhD in American Literature in 2014 from Maria Curie-Skłodowska University in Lublin. Her dissertation was published as a monograph Pokochoać czerni: Dziedzictwo myśli W.E.B. Du Bois'a w książkach dla dzieci Nikki Giovanni, Faith Ringgold i bell hooks in 2015. Her academic interests encompass ethnic American children's literature. More currently, her research focuses on the intersection of race and place in contemporary African American children's picture books. She is a member of the International Research Society for Children's Literature (IRSCL).

[ORCID: 0000-0003-3769-2728; e.kleczej@uthrad.pl]

Marianne Kongerslev (PhD, University of Southern Denmark, 2016) is Assistant Professor of Anglophone literature and cultural studies at Aalborg University, Denmark. She has previously carried out research on Native American literature, US popular culture, feminisms/gender studies, and critical race studies, and she has previously taught US cultural studies at Copenhagen Business School, University of Southern Denmark, and Aarhus University. From 2014-15, she was visiting student researcher at UC Berkeley. In 2018 she started researching spite and precarity in US literatures and culture, in a project funded by the Carlsberg Foundation. Currently (spring 2019), she is a visiting scholar at the Appalachian Center at the University of Kentucky. [ORCID: 0000-0002-6494-7258; kongerslev@cgs.aau.dk]

Joseph Kuhn is Professor in American literature at Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań. He is the author of Allen Tate: A Study of Southern Modernism and the Religious Imagination (2011) and has published articles in The Southern Quarterly, Notes and Queries and Journal of American Studies (forthcoming). In 2016-2017 he received a research fellowship to study the manuscripts of James Agee at the Harry Ransom Center in the University of Texas, Austin. [ORCID: 0000-0002-0938-0543; kwieslaw@wa.amu.edu.pl]

Marie Liénard-Yeterian is Full Professor of American literature and cinema at the University of Nice-Sophia Antipolis. Her major fields of research are Southern Literature, American Theatre and the American South in Film. Her publications include articles on William Faulkner, Flannery O'Connor, Cormac McCarthy and Janisse Ray, Joyce Carol Oates (for the Cahier de l'Herne, 2017) and the films Deliverance, Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil, Cold Mountain, No Country for Old Men, and The Help. She has also published Faulkner et le cinéma (2010), a book on the Southern Gothic and Grotesque titled Nouvelles du Sud: Hearing Voices, Reading Stories (2012) and the first volume of a collection she created ("Play and Film") devoted to A Streetcar Named Desire (A Streetcar Named Desire: From Pen to Prop, 2012). She has co-edited Culture et Mémoire (2008) and Le Sud au Cinéma (2009), and a special issue of Gothic Studies on the Gothic after 9/11 (November 2015). She has recently published a collection of short stories titled Ombres et Murmures: quand la scène devient un monde (2018) under the pen name Thomas Thérèse. She is currently working on a book on the Grotesque on screen and on book on Humans and Machines in American Cinema.

[ORCID: 0000-0002-8429-5023; Marie.lienard-yeterian@univ-cotedazur.fr]

Urszula Niewiadomska-Flis is Associate Professor at the John Paul II Catholic University of Lublin, Poland. Her scholarly interests encompass representations of foodways in literature and film, literature of the American South, American short story, and ethnic/immigrant literatures of the USA. She is the author of Aristocratic Ethos in Ellen Glasgow's and Walker Percy's Fiction (KUL Publishing House, 2011), The Southern Mystique: Food, Gender and Houses in Southern Fiction and Films (Publicacions de la Universitat de València, 2012). Her most recent project Live and Let Di(n)e: Food and Race in the Texts of the American South (KUL Publishing House, 2017) was awarded "the 2018 American Studies Network Book Prize" by the American Studies Network (of EAAS). Her next scholarly endeavors develop in two directions: explorations of the ethnic Southern literatures through the prism of food as well as investigations of the role of food in American culture.

[ORCID: 0000-0003-0840-6497; urszula.niewiadomska.flis@gmail.com]

Marco Petrelli received a PhD in English-language Literatures from the University of Rome “Sapienza” with a dissertation titled “A Southern Mode of the Imagination”: Space and Myth in Cormac McCarthy’s Novels. His research mainly focuses upon the literature and culture of the US South. Other research interests include (but are not limited to) contemporary American literature, American gothic fiction, geocriticism, postmodernism and graphic narratives. He published articles on William Faulkner and Cormac McCarthy and a number of reviews on various contemporary American Southern writers.

[ORCID: 0000-0003-1560-861X; marco.sal.petrelli@gmail.com]

Peter Templeton is a Fellow of the School of the Arts, English and Drama at Loughborough University. His first book, The Politics of Southern Pastoral Literature, 1785–1885: Jeffersonian Afterlives, was published by Palgrave Macmillan in 2019, and he acts as co-editor of a collection of essays on violence in African-American culture, which is forthcoming with Routledge. He is also the author of articles published by Journal of American Studies, European Journal of American Studies, and Symbiosis.

[ORCID: 0000-0002-1339-7612; P.A.R.Templeton@lboro.ac.uk]