

Contributors

Stefan L. Brandt is Professor of American Studies at the University of Graz and former President of the Austrian Association for American Studies. After receiving his PhD and Venia Legendi at Freie Universität Berlin, he became affiliated with various universities in Germany, Austria, Italy, the Netherlands, Canada, and the United States. Brandt has talked and published on a wide range of topics within the interdisciplinary fields of American Popular Culture, Gender Theory, and Transnational American Studies. He has published three monographs: Männerblicke [Male Gazes] (1999), Inszenierte Männlichkeit [Staged Masculinity] (2007), The Culture of Corporeality (2007), and four anthologies: Douglas Sirk's Imitation of Life (1999), Transnational American Studies (with Winfried Fluck and Ingrid Thaler; 2007), Making National Bodies (with Astrid M. Fellner; 2010), and Transcultural Spaces (with Winfried Fluck and Frank Mehring; 2010). Two volumes titled Space Oddities (with Michael Fuchs and Susanne Hamscha) and Fantastic Cities (with Michael Fuchs and Stefan Rabitsch) are forthcoming. [stefan.brandt@uni-graz.at]

Michał Choiński is Assistant Professor in the Institute of English Studies at the Jagiellonian University. His research focuses on the colonial preaching tradition, the US presidential oratory, as well as the grotesque in Southern literature. He is the author of Rhetoric of the Revival: the Language of the Great Awakening Preachers (2016). [michalchoinski@gmail.com]

Olga Korytowska graduated from the American Studies Center at the University of Warsaw. Currently, she is a Ph.D. student at the Graduate School for Social Research in Warsaw. She is the laureate of the 2015 PAAS Award for the Best M.A. Thesis. [olga.korytowska@gmail.com]

Sabrina Mittermeier, M.A. has been a PhD candidate at the Ludwig-Maximilians-University in Munich since 2014, working on a dissertation concerning Disneyland and its changes in different cultural contexts and over the last 60 years. Her research interests include American popular culture (with a focus on TV and film since 1980), as well as American religions and of course, theme park studies. She further works as a research assistant for the project “‘Here You Leave Today’: Aesthetic Proper Times in Theme Parks” funded by the German Research Foundation and based at the Johannes-Gutenberg-University Mainz. [Sabrina.Mittermeier@pecess.de]

Łukasz Muniowski is a doctoral student at the Institute of English Studies, University of Warsaw. His research interests include the work of Hubert Selby and Jack Kerouac, graphic novels, American sports. He is working on a doctoral thesis tentatively titled “The Tools of the Weak: The Transgressive Literary Art of Hubert Selby Jr.” [lukaszmuniowski@o2.pl]

Marek Paryż is Associate Professor and Chair of the Section of American Literature at the Institute of English Studies, University of Warsaw. He is the chief editor of the Polish Journal for American Studies and senior editor for literature and culture of the European Journal of American Studies. He co-edits (with Ewa Łuczak) a series of companions to major American writers for the University of Warsaw Press and has prepared volumes on Don DeLillo (2012), Cormac McCarthy (2014) and the Beat writers (forthcoming 2016) for the series. His recent book publications include Przestrzenie kanonu. Szkice o prozie amerykańskiej od lat 40. XX wieku do czasów najnowszych (Spaces of the Canon: Essays on American Fiction from the 1940s till the Present; 2015) and a co-edited volume of essays The Post-2000 Film Western: Contexts, Transnationality, Hybridity (2015). [m.a.paryz@uw.edu.pl]

Joanna Perzyna holds a double MA from the University of Warsaw: in Spanish and in American Studies. Currently, she is a postgraduate student at the Center for East European Studies, University of Warsaw, and a doctoral student at the Institute of English Studies, University of Warsaw. Her doctoral project will focus on the TV series Bonanza. [j.perzyna1@gmail.com]

Alicja Piechucka is Assistant Professor in the Unit of American Literature at the University of Łódź. Her doctoral thesis was on T. S. Eliot’s poetry. Her academic interests include American modernist poetry and contemporary American prose. Much of her research focuses on comparative studies of American and French literature. She is also interested in the visual arts and American visual culture. She teaches, among others, courses in American literature and American painting. A literary critic, she has been a regular contributor to Nowe Książki and Tygiel Kultury. [alicja.piechucka@uni.lodz.pl]

Małgorzata Rutkowska holds a PhD in Literary Studies and works as Assistant Professor at the Department of English, Maria Curie Skłodowska University in Lublin. Her research interests include British and American travel writing in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, Animal Studies and representations of human-animal bond in literature. She is the author of In Search of America: The Image of the United States in Travel Writing of the 1980s and 1990s (2006), a study which examines generic conventions in contemporary travel books and analyzes the way travel writers construct the provincial America. She is currently working on a book devoted to representations of domestic animals in American pet memoirs and recent American fiction. [ma.rutkowska@gmail.com]

Marta Rzepecka is a lecturer at the University of Rzeszów. Her main research interest has been the American presidency, especially in the twentieth century, and foreign policy. She is an author of publications on the presidential rhetoric of anti-Communism and anti-terrorism. [americana2180@wp.pl]

Paweł Stachura teaches at the Faculty of English, Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań. His Ph.D. dissertation concerned geographical writings and fictional descriptions of the American frontier in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. He has published mostly on the fiction and poetry of the American Renaissance and on science fiction. He has recently published The American Baroque (2013), a book on visual imagery in pop literature between 1865 and 1965. [pawels@wa.amu.edu.pl]

Grzegorz Welizarowicz is an Assistant Professor at the Institute of English and American Studies, University of Gdańsk. He teaches courses in American culture and literature. His research concentrates on Latino/a and Black cultural production, as well as on the history of American Borderlands. He is currently working on a book project tentatively titled “Real and Imaginary Landscapes of Culture Clash: Cognitive Cartography of California Chicano Theater” in which he explores the intersection of landscape and epistemology in such discourses as mission museums, the myth of mission pastoral, and plays by contemporary Chicano and Black theater artists from California. Other interests include: cognitive theory, history of American ideas, New Racial Studies, Genocide Studies, and others. [grzegorz.welizarowicz@ug.edu.pl]

ISSN 1733-9154

9 771733 915008